

As television broadcasters continue to navigate “new normals” in a post-pandemic world, continuously changing technologies, and an endless stream of new and unregulated competitors, RBR+TVBR recognizes that leaders and visionaries are more important to the industry than ever before. From fast-moving technology to traditional and basic but critical service to local communities, television continues to provide the kind of strong anchor, cutting-edge confidence, and steady hand that has the ability and the courage to take charge and lead in uncertain times and over the evolving landscape.

For the past several years, RBR+TVBR has also shone a spotlight on those who stand for excellence in radio and television broadcast technology and finance. We firmly believe that their commitment to the industry deserves our commitment to congratulating and encouraging them. We invite those who know them best, those who admire them, and those who appreciate their value to join us in celebrating and acknowledging their accomplishments and their continued resolve to make television even brighter and better in the years to come.
